

Copping A Plea

Copping out is an integral part of the American Criminal Justice System; the concept of the accused copping a plea, as a result of his or her incarceration, exposes an internal system within the American Criminal Justice System, that is literally insane and void of restraint. The copping a plea system within the American Criminal Justice System forces those accused of criminal offences to plead guilty to crimes to which they are accused; irrespective of their guilt or innocence. This particular aspect of the American Criminal Justice System represents a serious miscarriage of justice for the accused, and reveals an outright abuse of the system by the law enforcement officials involved in the process directly. Sadly, this disorderly and corrupt practice of the accused being forced to cop a plea, imprisons the innocent and allows the guilty to go free. Black persons accused of crimes have found themselves caught up in this copping a plea situation in ways that make them the most vulnerable to unbelievable American Criminal Justice System abuses; and these unfortunate acts committed against the accused, by members of law enforcement all across this country, occur primarily because of the economic status of most of the black persons who find themselves in situations involving law violations (which, of course leads to an arrest and an incarceration of some sort). In addition, I will also examine the roles of the main characters involved. They are as follows: The system itself; the judges; the lawyers; the police officers; and the prosecutors. In other words, the people who are supposed to be the guardians and custodians of the American Criminal Justice System, and who are duly sworn and designated to resolve these matters, are actually contributing to this forced copping a plea epidemic, and have revealed themselves to be the main perpetrators who miscarry justice against many innocent American citizens. Unfortunately, this fact leaves justice un-served: and the trusting public is left holding the bag, so to say, trying to make sense out of a corrupt legal system. For this reason, the members of the general public deserve better than this because their tax dollars pay for these injustices to take place within the American Criminal Justice System.
